Adina Abramowitz is the principal of Consulting for Change, a consulting practice serving community development nonprofits. She led the consulting and training program for the Opportunity Finance Network for 10 years. She is a member of Minyan Dorshei Derekh and was a member of the Reconstructionist Prayerbook Commission.

Rabbi Jordan Bendat-Appell, '08, is the spiritual leader of the Aitz Hayim Center for Jewish Living in Glencoe, IL. He is an adjunct faculty member of the Institute for Jewish Spirituality and a co-founder of the Jewish Meditation Center of Chicago.

Rabbi Joshua Boettiger, '06, serves Congregation Beth El in Bennington, VT.

Barbara E. Breitman, D. Min., is a psychotherapist in private practice who teaches at RRC and taught previously at the University of Pennsylvania School of Social Work. She is the co-editor of Jewish Spiritual Direction: An Innovative Guide from Traditional and Contemporary Sources.

Rabbi Lester Bronstein has served Bet Am Shalom Synagogue in White Plains, NY, since 1989. He has been a member of the Reconstructionist Rabbinical Association board and of the Joint Task Force on the Role of the Rabbi.

Joseph Cohen is a graduate of Yale and Oxford universities who had a distinguished career as an investment banker on Wall Street, following which he was president of Largo Entertainment. Cohen currently advises a number of leading independent production companies and large international media concerns. He also is an adjunct professor at the Peter Stark Producing Program in the graduate film school of the University of Southern California.

Rabbi Fredi Cooper, '00, is an assistant professor of practical rabbinics at RRC. She has served as director of congregational development and education at the Jewish Reconstructionist Federation, as an educational psychologist and family therapist in private practice, and as a congregational rabbi.

Jeffrey Dekro is senior vice president of Jewish Funds for Justice and serves as chair of the Isaiah Fund, which he co-founded. He was president of The Shefa Fund, where he established and helped to lead Tzedec: The National Jewish Partnership for Community Investing. He co-authored Jews, Money & Social Responsibility with Lawrence Bush. He is a member of Congregation Mishkan Shalom in Philadelphia.

Rabbi Fred Scherlinder Dobb, '97, leads Adat Shalom Reconstructionist Congregation in Bethesda, MD.

Aaron Dorfman is the director of education at American Jewish World Service, where he teaches and develops educational materials on Jewish approaches to global justice. Before joining AJWS, Dorfman completed a Wexner Graduate Fellowship with a master’s degree in public policy from the Kennedy School at Harvard University, as well as a year of study at the Pardes Institute in Jerusalem. Prior to that, he spent eight years teaching and leading youth programs at Temple Isaiah in Lafayette, CA.

Rabbi Dan Ehrenkrantz, ’89, is president of RRC and is the College’s Aaron and Marjorie Ziegelman presidential professor. A past president of the Reconstructionist Rabbinical Association, he previously was rabbi of Congregation Bnai Keshet in Montclair, NJ.

Rabbi Lewis John Eron, ’81, Ph.D., is the Jewish community chaplain for the Jewish Federation of Southern New Jersey in Cherry Hill, NJ, and director of religious services at the Lions Gate Continuing Care Retirement Community in Voorhees, NJ.

Harriet A. Feiner is a consultant to the Shira Ruskay Center and the Doula to Accompany and Comfort Program of the Jewish Board of Family and Children’s Services in New York, where she previously served as director. She is a longtime leader of the Reconstructionist Synagogue of the North Shore of Long Island. She was an associate professor of social work at the Wurzweiler School of Social Work of Yeshiva University.

Rabbi Michael Fessler, ’01, is co-rabbi of Congregation B’nai Tikvah-Beth Israel in Sewell, NJ. He moderates the listserv of the Reconstructionist Rabbinical Association.

Rabbi Lee Friedlander, ’75, is a past president of the Reconstructionist Rabbinical Association and was a “readings” editor of Kol Haneshamah. He has been a rabbi of the Reconstructionist Synagogue of the North Shore since 1981.

Rabbi Nancy Fuchs-Kreimer, ’82, Ph.D., is associate professor of religious studies and directs the Department of Multifaith Studies and Initiatives at RRC. A past president of the Reconstructionist Rabbinical Association, she is the author of Parenting as a Spiritual Journey (Jewish Lights, 1998).

Rabbi Gail Glicksman, ’86, is assistant dean at Temple University’s College of Health Professions and Social Work. She has also served as dean of students at RRC and taught the social aspects of health and illness at the University of Pennsylvania.

Rabbi Shai Gluskin, ’95, heads Content2zero Web, a consulting firm. He previously worked at the Jewish Reconstructionist Federation, where he developed expertise in learning and communication via the Internet.

Rabbi Elisa Goldberg, ’99, has been the director of the Joan Grossman Center for Chaplaincy and Healing of the Jewish Family and Children’s Service of Greater Philadelphia since 2000. She has worked as a chaplain in community-based programs and in both acute and long-term care facilities. She serves as a spiritual director at RRC.
Rabbi Steve Gutow, '03, is executive director of the Jewish Council for Public Affairs. He has previously worked as a congregational rabbi and an attorney. He was the founding executive director of the National Jewish Democratic Council.

Chayim Herzig-Marx, Ph.D., has served as interim executive director of the Jewish Reconstructionist Federation and is a past board member and treasurer of JRF. He is a founder of Congregation Dorshei Tzedek in Newton, MA.

Rabbi Richard Hirsh, '81, is executive director of the Reconstructionist Rabbinical Association, editor of The Reconstructionist, and a former congregational rabbi. He teaches at RRC.

Susan J. Hoffman trained and advised Jewish funders for over a decade with the Jewish Funds for Justice and The Shefa Fund. She is a member of Congregation Mishkan Shalom in Philadelphia.

Rabbi Margaret Holub is rabbi of the Mendocino Coast Jewish Community in northern California. She was founding chair of “Honor the Image of God: Stop Torture Now” for Rabbis for Human Rights. She spent her sabbatical at the Desmond Tutu Peace Center in South Africa.

Rachel Jeffer has served on the board of trustees of Kehillat Israel Reconstructionist Congregation in Pacific Palisades, CA, for eight years, including two as president and three as chair of the congregation’s tikun olam committee. She also serves on a variety of other nonprofit boards and advisory committees. For more than 25 years, she has applied her expertise in human resources management and organizational development to her professional and community service activities.

Leah Kamionkowski is a certified public accountant. She served as a vice president of the Jewish Reconstructionist Federation and is a member of Kol HaLev in Cleveland.

Tamar Kamionkowski, Ph.D., is the vice president for academic affairs, academic dean and associate professor of biblical civilization at RRC.

Rabbi Donna Kirshbaum, '08, serves as the rabbi of Reconstructionist Congregation String of Pearls in Princeton, NJ.

Rabbi Amy Klein, '96, is the coordinator of kehillah and Bet Midrash programs for Yuvalim, the Center for Jewish Identity and Culture at Tel Hai College in the Upper Galilee, Israel, and is on the faculty of Ta Shma: Pluralistic Jewish Learning. She serves on the board of Rabbis for Human Rights and volunteers for Elem, a non-profit working with youth at risk.

Rabbi Jason Gary Klein, '02, has served on the boards of the RRA and RRC and is a faculty member at Camp JRF. He currently serves as director of Hillel at UMBC (University of Maryland, Baltimore County).

Rabbi Myriam Klotz, '99, is director of yoga and lay programs at the Institute for Jewish Spirituality and co-director of the Yoga and Jewish Spirituality Teacher Training at Isabella Freedman/Elat Chayyim Jewish Retreat Center.
Seth Kreimer is the Kenneth W. Gemmill Professor of Law at the University of Pennsylvania and a past president of Congregation Mishkan Shalom in Philadelphia.

Rabbi Elliot Kukla is a rabbi at the Bay Area Healing Center in San Francisco. He was ordained by Hebrew Union College in Los Angeles and trained in chaplaincy at the University of California at San Francisco (UCSF) Medical Center Langley Porter Psychiatric Institute. His articles on gender and Judaism are published and anthologized widely; he has lectured on Jewish perspectives on stigma and diversity across the country.

Kenneth Leeds, M.D., is the director of the bioethics program at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles. He practices ENT medicine and is an active member of Kehillat Israel in Pacific Palisades, CA.

Rabbi Allan Lehmann, ’79, is associate dean of the Rabbinical School of Hebrew College, Newton, MA. He previously served as the Jewish chaplain and rabbinic Hillel director at Brandeis University. He had been a synagogue rabbi in Gainesville, FL, for over 20 years.

Rabbi Darby Jared Leigh, ’08, serves Congregation Bnai Keshet in Montclair, NJ. He has written on ethical questions related to hearing impairment.

Rabbi Mordechai Liebling, ’85, directs the Social Justice Organizing Program at RRC. He previously served as vice president of the Jewish Funds for Justice, as Torah of Money Director at The Shefa Fund, and as executive director of the Jewish Reconstructionist Federation.

Rabbi Nina H. Mandel, ’03, serves Congregation Beth El in Sunbury, PA. She is also a lecturer in the Department of Philosophy and Religion at Susquehanna University.

Rabbi Vivian Mayer is the director of the Mekhinah-year program and Bet Midrash at RRC. She formerly served as rabbi of Congregation B’nai Israel in Danbury, CT.

Ruth W. Messinger has been the CEO of American Jewish World Service since 1998. Prior to that, she was president of Manhattan Borough for eight years. She also served as a member of the New York City Council for 11 years. She is a long-time member of the Society for the Advancement of Judaism (SAJ) in New York City.

Deborah Dash Moore is the Frederick G.L. Huetwell Professor of History at the University of Michigan and directs its Jewish studies program. She is a member of the West End Synagogue in New York City.

Rabbi Devra Noily, ’09, has been active in queer Jewish communities for 20 years and has served congregations Sha’ar Zahav in San Francisco, Beit HaChidush in Amsterdam and Bet Haverim in Atlanta. She is currently the director of the Kehilla Community Synagogue School in Piedmont, CA.

Carl Norden, M.D., is an internist specializing in infectious diseases and epidemiology. He is professor of clinical medicine at the New Jersey School of Medicine and Dentistry, where he did medical research and teaches. He has served on the Infectious Diseases Advisory Committee of the FDA.
Joyce Norden, Ph.D., previously was an assistant professor of history at Carnegie-Mellon University and served as the vice president for institutional advancement at RRC.

Mark S. Nussbaum, CFP, CIMA, Senior Vice President, Investments with Wells Fargo Advisors, LLC. Previously, he served as member of the board of directors of Western Federal Savings and Loan Association. Nussbaum serves as a board member of RRC and as a member of the endowment board of Congregation Dor Hadash in San Diego.

Rabbi Barbara Penzner, ’87, serves Temple Hillel B’nai Torah in West Roxbury, MA. A past president of the Reconstructionist Rabbinical Association, she lived in Israel for two years as a Jerusalem Fellow and worked as a consultant to the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Boston.

Nancy Post, Ph.D., a management consultant, executive coach and acupuncturist, has taught at the Wharton School and in Temple’s Executive MBA program. She earned her Ph.D. in organizational behavior from the Union Institute and her M.A. and B.A. from the University of Pennsylvania. A former member of the Jewish Reconstructionist Federation board, she is an active member of Mishkan Shalom in Philadelphia.

Rabbi Linda Potemken, ’97, is the rabbi of Congregation Beth Israel in Media, PA.

Marilyn Price is a nationally acclaimed storyteller/puppeteer, educator and author. She uses her skills as entry points for teaching literacy and imagination in venues as diverse as early childhood centers and Elder hostels. She frequently works with synagogue and church groups, using stories and sacred texts to help people deepen their spiritual awareness.

Barbara Reisman has been a member of Bnai Keshet Reconstructionist Synagogue in Montclair, NJ, for 22 years. During that time, she has co-chaired the religious school committee and the long-range planning committee, served as vice president, started the Friday morning minyan, and participated in the synagogue’s social action and congregation-based community organizing. She is the executive director of the Schumann Fund for New Jersey.

Rabbi Steven Carr Reubin is senior rabbi of Kehillat Israel Reconstructionist Synagogue in Pacific Palisades, CA. He is the author of five books on raising ethical children and on aspects of intermarriage, as well as many articles.

Rabbi Yael Ridberg, ’97, is the spiritual leader of Congregation Dor Hadash in San Diego and a past president of the Reconstructionist Rabbinical Association.

Rabbi Brant Rosen, ’92, is the spiritual leader of the Jewish Reconstructionist Congregation in Evanston, IL. He is a past president of the Reconstructionist Rabbinical Association and serves as the chair of the Jewish Voice for Peace Rabbinical Council.

Rabbi Dennis C. Sasso, ’74, is senior rabbi of Congregation Beth El Zedek and affiliate professor of Judaism at Christian Theological Seminary in Indianapolis. He is a past president of the Reconstructionist Rabbinical Association.
Rabbi Sandy Eisenberg Sasso, ’74, is senior rabbi of Congregation Beth El Zedek in Indianapolis, where she has served along with her husband, Dennis C. Sasso, since 1977. She was the first woman to be ordained by RRC. She is the author of many award-winning children’s books, including God’s Paintbrush and In God’s Name, and is co-editor of the children’s siddur, Kol HaNoar. She has written a book on Midrash for adults, God’s Echo: Exploring Scripture with Midrash.

Luis Schuchinski retired as corporate vice president for taxes and insurance from Bestfoods, a multinational, branded grocery products company. He was born in Cuba, came to the United States in 1960 and received his J.D. degree in 1964 from the Yale Law School. He is a member of Congregation Bnai Keshet in Montclair, NJ.

Rabbi Sidney Schwarz, ’80, was founding executive director of Panim: The Institute for Jewish Leadership and Values. He previously served as executive director of the Jewish Community Council of Greater Washington, DC, and was the founding rabbi of Adat Shalom Reconstructionist Congregation in Rockville, MD, where he is now rabbi emeritus.

Rabbi Toba Spitzer, ’97, services JRF Congregation Dorshei Tzedek in Newton, MA. She has done a variety of rabbinical and educational work on Jewish approaches to issues of economic justice and the role of money in our everyday lives.

Rabbi Jacob J. Staub, ’77, Ph.D., is the professor of Jewish philosophy and spirituality at RRC, where he directs the program in Jewish spiritual direction. He previously served as RRC’s vice president for academic affairs.

Rabbi Robert J. Tabak, ’77, is a chaplain at the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania and editor of the RRA newsletter.

Rabbi Elliott M. Tepperman, ’02, has been spiritual leader of Bnai Keshet Reconstructionist Synagogue in Montclair, NJ, since 2002, when he graduated from RRC. Dedicated to social justice, he has been an activist in congregation-based community organizing.

Rabbi David A. Teutsch, Ph.D., is the Wiener Professor of Contemporary Jewish Civilization and director of the Levin-Lieber Program in Jewish Ethics at RRC. A past president of the College, he was editor in chief of the Kol Haneshamah prayer book series.

Lisa Kelvin Tuttle was communications director for the Jewish Reconstructionist Federation in Jenkintown, PA. For over 20 years, she has been a communications consultant, editor and writer serving academic and Jewish nonprofit organizations.

Rabbi Joshua Waxman, ’03, is the spiritual leader of Or Hadash: A Reconstructionist Congregation in Fort Washington, PA, and serves as a spiritual director at RRC.

Rabbi Sheila Peltz Weinberg, ’86, is outreach director and teaches meditation at the Institute for Jewish Spirituality. She has previously served as a congregational rabbi, Hillel director and community relations professional.
Rabbi Shawn Israel Zevit, '98, is an author, recording artist, consultant, spiritual director, teacher and director of outreach and tikun olam for the Jewish Reconstructionist Federation. Co-director of the Davenning Leader's Training Institute, he is the author of Offerings of the Heart: Money in Faith Communities (Alban, 2005).

Edward D. Zinbarg, Ph.D., retired as executive vice president of the Prudential Insurance Company. Previously he was director of Merrill Lynch (now BlackRock) mutual funds. He holds a doctorate in economics from New York University, an M.B.A. from the Wharton School, and an M.A. in religious ethics from Drew University. His most recent book is Faith, Morals and Money: What the World’s Religions Tell Us About Ethics in the Marketplace. 