Alison Adler, MA, is Conference Coordinator, creator and facilitator of two Rosh Hodesh (monthly) groups for teen girls, and a teacher. She has an MA in Counseling Psychology and studies at the Reconstructionist Rabbinical College (RRC).

Meredith Barber, PhD, is a therapist at The Renfrew Center and sees clients at a group practice in Bucks County.

Karen Eselson-Belding, PsyD, is Clinical Director of The Renfrew Center and has a private practice in Philadelphia.

Rabbi Sue Fendrick is Director of Visions for Change, a network of social action projects at Brown-RISD Hillel and is working on a memoir about her family of Holocaust survivors. She is a Conservative Rabbi and teacher of bibliodrama, Jewish texts, and contemporary Jewish life.

Harin Feibish, LSW, is creator and coordinator of The Renfrew Center’s Body Balance Program, an Alternative for Large Women. She has 20 years of experience working with women struggling with eating issues and body image distortion.

Rachel Gartner leads movement workshops on Jewish themes and facilitates a teen girls’ group using art, writing, movement, and drama. She studies at the RRC and is Student Chair of Kolot.

Jan Goldman, PhD, is a psychologist in private practice and former Clinical Associate Professor of Psychology at Hahnemann University. A graduate of Hahnemann Medical College, she was named their Outstanding Alumna in 1981.

Rabbi David Goldwasser is from Congregation Beis Yitzchak in Brooklyn, NY.

Joel Hecker, PhD, is Director of the Department of Modern Civilization at the RRC. He received his PhD in Jewish Mysticism from New York University and rabbinic ordination from Yeshiva University.

Talia Isenstein, PhD, is a licensed clinical psychologist in private practice with extensive experience working with concentration camp survivors and the second generation.

Myriam Klotz, MA, is the spiritual leader of the Houston Reconstructionist Havurah, a certified yoga and massage therapist, and rabbinic intern for the National Center for Jewish Healing.

Rabbi Yaakov J. Kravitz, EdD, is the Director of the Chai Institute, a Jewish center for healing and health psychology. He is a licensed psychologist and certified pastoral counselor.

Lori Lefkowitz, PhD, is Associate Professor and Director of Kolot at the RRC. She writes and speaks frequently on gender and Judaism.

Frani Pollack, RD, MSW, is completing her PhD in Clinical Psychology at the University of Toronto. She has extensive experience in clinical work with eating disorders.

Judith Ruskay Rabinor, PhD, is the Director of The American Eating Disorders Center of Long Island, Lido Beach, NY, Consultant to The Renfrew Center Foundation; Faculty and Supervisor, Center for the Study of Anorexia and Bulimia, NYC.

Michele Reimer, PhD, is a psychologist in the Department of Psychiatry at the University of PA Medical School. She has lectured and written about women’s development and the role of shame in adolescence.

Rochelle Robins, MA, will be ordained as a rabbi in May, 1998 at HUC-JIR. She is Director of Bat Kol, a feminist house of study, and Jewish Chaplain at The Hospital of the University of PA.

Ira M. Sackner, MD, is Director and Founder of HEED (Helping to End Eating Disorders) and Director of Adolescent and Young Adult Medicine at Brookdale University Hospital and Medical Center in Brooklyn, NY.
Jane Shure, PhD, has a private practice and expertise in treating sexual trauma, eating disorders, and shame-related behaviors. She is a national trainer for educators and healthcare professionals, and faculty member of the Omega Institute for Holistic Studies in Rhinebeck, NY and the Kripalu Center in Lenox, MA.

Shoshana Silberman, PhD, is a consultant at the Auerbach Central Agency for Jewish Education. She has been a teacher, principal, lecturer, and author of several books.

Karen L. Smith, MSS, LSW, is a Clinical Social Worker at The Renfrew Center and Co-Chair of this Conference. She has a private practice in Philadelphia, PA.

Catherine Steiner-Adair, EdD, is Director of Education, Prevention, and Treatment at the Harvard Eating Disorders Center, clinical and consulting psychologist at Middlesex Family Associates in Lexington, MA, and faculty member of the Family Institute of Cambridge in Watertown, MA. She has written extensively and lectured nationally and in Israel on topics related to girls' development and the treatment and prevention of eating disorders. Dr. Steiner-Adair is a recipient of a Girls ACTION initiative grant from the Paul and Phyllis Fireman Charitable Foundation to develop Full of Ourselves: Advancing Girls' Right to Throw Their Weight Around, a program promoting girls' healthy development and the prevention of eating disorders.

Rabbi Arthur Waskow is Director of the Shalom Center, Pathfinder of ALEPH: Alliance for Jewish Renewal, author of Down-to-Earth Judaism: Food, Money, Sex, and the Rest of Life, and many other works on Jewish renewal.

Shawn Israel Zevit is Rabbinic Assistant at Temple Sinai, Communication Professor at Temple University, theatre and musical artist, and leader of programs for Jewish men. He graduates from the RRC this June.